Fund Manger Views

- ▶ India's exposure to global conflicts remains largely indirect and manageable. Periods of geopolitical stress typically result in higher crude prices and short-term currency volatility, but the country today is far better positioned to absorb such shocks. Strong foreign exchange reserves, a more resilient external balance sheet, and a credible monetary policy framework provide important buffers. The Reserve Bank of India has consistently demonstrated its ability to maintain financial stability by looking through temporary, event-driven inflation pressures and ensuring adequate system liquidity when required. These anchors have helped prevent short-term volatility from turning into lasting macro stress.
- ▶ From a valuation and earnings perspective, the recent correction has made markets more attractive. Valuations have become more compelling, earnings expectations have improved, economic momentum is picking up, and domestic inflows remain supportive.
- ▶ Going forward, markets are likely to continue rewarding companies with high earnings visibility, sustained profitability and strong structural growth drivers, available at reasonable valuations. Stock selection will remain critical, with a preference for domestic-oriented sectors over export-heavy plays.
- ▶ Fund is pro-cyclical and earnings focused towards themes such as manufacturing (EMS, China +1), strong growth in some of the sectors such as healthcare, travel, auto and other discretionary consumption which are beneficiaries of formalization and premiumization, and also immune from global uncertainties.
- ▶ On the Debt side, Since February 2025, we have been steadily reducing portfolio duration, shifting away from long-duration strategies toward accrual-focused approaches. This year, we see accrual and selective tactical duration as the dominant themes, particularly in long bonds and state development loans (SDLs).
- ▶ Our preferred positioning includes 2-year AA-rated corporate bonds for steady accrual and long-tenor government securities for duration plays, offering a combination of consistent accrual and potential upside.
