Ideal solution for granular asset allocation

Why Target Maturity ETFs?

- Target maturity ETF is a portfolio designed to terminate at a pre-defined date.
- The fund manager achieves this by buying securities with similar maturities as close to the defined maturity date and holds them to maturity.
- As time passes, the ETF may add securities that meet the methodology criteria
- As the ETF progresses the duration of the securities diminishes until the fund matures
- The strategy aims to negate any duration risk for investors who remain invested through the life of the ETF
